Dear Mr. Irving:

I have read with much interest the notes of appreciation and notes of the Colonel in the clipping from "The Star" that you were kind enough to send me. I am also quite sure that the opinion of General Watson as to his personal worth is one that is shared by all his friends.

With kind regards, I am,

Yours sincerely,

Dear Mr. Jull:

A few days ago on my return to my office I found a very handsome bible with its beautiful inscription which through you the Scottish Rite have been so kind as to send me. Let me assure you that I am very grateful to you for your gift, so handsome and so suitable. However, the little service that I was able to give you was a pleasure in itself, and is far more than acknowledged in this highly appreciated gift.

With kind regards, I am,

Yours sincerely,

President.
